WHAT IS A MANTRA?
The word mantra is based on the Sanskrit roots manas (mind) and trai (device). In Hindu and Buddhist usage, it has come to mean “spiritual sound formula.” Hindu scripture calls mantra “that which, when contemplated and repeated, will offer protection.”

The proper study of Sanskrit mantra includes physical anatomy; the system of subtle channels in the body; diagrams of spiritual energy processing centers (chakras); and the human voice, which powerfully influences all of the above. Sanskrit mantras are also key to techniques for awakening kundalini, a subtle power cell located at the base of the spine.

HOW MANTRAS WORK AND USING YOUR MANTRA

Please understand that if you undertake to work in a disciplined manner with any of these mantras, you will be setting certain forces in motion. The energy of the mantra itself will work in a specific way with your intention, adding focus and power to the practice. Your job is to be ready to receive the result – which may not necessarily match your expectations.

Mantra practice can be done anywhere: in your car, while performing household chores, etc. It is beneficial, however, to select a quiet place where you can ground your daily meditation and mantra practice. Here, you may prepare an altar on top of a dresser, in a closet, or even... in a free room, if possible. You might wish to place pictures of spiritual teachers or icons, malas (rosaries used to count repetitions), and other devotional items on your altar.

There are two primary ways in which mantra is traditionally practiced. Which one you choose will depend upon the circumstances of your life and the urgency of your intention.

The Forty-Day Approach
Chant the mantra 108 times twice a day (or as much as possible) for forty days. Most people will achieve some kind of significant result through this process.

Repetition by the Numbers
Traditionally, one must chant a mantra 125,000 times in order to achieve continuing proficiency with the practice. This may sound like a lot, but consider that for a short mantra, one hour of repetition per day totals between 2,500 and 3,000, depending on your speed. At 25 per hour and one hour per day, you will reach the goal of 125,000 in just fifty days – less than two months.

HOW TO USE THIS STUDY GUIDE
Healing Mantras includes twenty mantras that you can use to heal various aspects of your experience. The mantras are grouped according to their powers: general healing mantras, relationship mantras, recitations for abundance and good luck, physical healing mantras, invocations of feminine power, and mantras for spiritual growth.

On the program, each mantra is enunciated slowly, then chanted continuously for about a minute so that you can learn it and join in. Use this study guide to refresh your memory on specific mantras, and to learn more about their origins and uses. Once you are familiar with the Sanskrit pronunciations, you can simply consult this printed guide as needed to find the appropriate mantra for your situation.

SEED MANTRAS

The simplest mantras are called “seed sounds.” These short, powerful sounds are mantras in themselves, and also building blocks for longer mantras. In Hindu tradition, each seed sound is typically associated with an anthropomorphized deity: a fabricated being – such as Shiva, Saraswati, or Lakshmi – who embodies the principle of the sound. Having a familiar, human-like form with which to associate these principles makes it easier for our minds to understand their raw power. Whether one calls these beings “principles,” “ancestors,” or “gods and goddesses” does not matter over the long term. The powers they represent can change our lives for the better, no matter what we may believe or how we imagine them.

Here are some primary seed sounds and – where applicable – the anthropomorphized principles associated with them.
Shrim [pronounced “shreem”]: This is the sound for the feminine principle of abundance called Lakshmi. Repetition of the Shrim mantra produces the ability to attract and maintain abundance: financial wealth, good health, friends, enough food to eat, inner peace, the love of children and family, and so forth.

Eim [“I'm”]: This seed sound is associated with the feminine Saraswati, who rules artistic and scientific endeavors, music, and education. The same principle governs the development and manifestation of spiritual knowledge, good education, memory and intelligence, and musical skill.

Klim [“kleem”]: This is the seed mantra for the principle of attraction. It is sometimes combined with other mantras to attract an object of desire. As you chant the mantra Klim, the power of your focus upon the desired condition becomes more intense.

Dum [“doom”]: This is the seed for the feminine principle called Durga, which invokes protection from that which is feared.

Krim [“kreem”]: The seed of Kali, the primordial feminine energy. Her considerable power is invoked to help burn away negative ego.

Gum [as in chewing gum]: This seed for Ganapathi, son of Shiva and Parvati and remover of obstacles, brings success in endeavors. It is especially good for those who are just getting started with mantras and want to test them.
The practice of mantra is not a remedy for all ills; nor can you necessarily expect the healing it brings to conform to your preconceptions. Do not use mantras to replace sensible medical care; in fact, your practice may even attract a cure in the form of a conventional treatment modality. Be ready to explore any route to recovery that may present itself. Mantras are not a substitute for other avenues, but rather a powerful complement to the various life-enhancing tools already available to you. Over time, you will find that they can significantly reinforce your overall health and well-being.

The following are the spiritual sound formulas you will hear on Healing Mantras. Consult this list to find the category of mantra you need and the specific mantra that best suits your situation. In some cases, the transliterations are self-explanatory. Otherwise, brief descriptions are included for clarification.

Part 1
Invocation

Mantras for General Help
Many problem-solving mantras are general in nature. The two that follow can be used to address any area of life that feels beset with obstacles or empty of meaning.

Om Gum Ganapatayei Namaha
“Om and salutations to the remover of obstacles [Ganapathī], for which Gum is the seed.”
Ganapathi is another name for the deity Ganesha, the personified power of unity who removes obstacles and begins the process of resolving inner conflict.

_Om Shri Shanaishwaraaya Swaha_
“Om and salutations to Saturn, the planet of lessons.”
This mantra softens aspects of planetary karma (astrological patterns) – especially those associated with Saturn – making life’s lessons easier to assimilate. It also relieves problems of the knees, spleen, and skeletal system.

Part 2

Mantras for Attracting Relationships
Mantras are not a magic bullet for attracting the perfect mate. They can, however, powerfully enhance a thoughtful, committed, conscious intent to embark on a healthy relationship. I recommend practicing your chosen mantra 108 times (about ten minutes) each day for forty days.

_Om Shrim Shriyei Namaha_
“Om and salutations to the creative abundance that is the very form of this universe.”
This simple mantra invokes the Great Feminine within – which also attracts it from without. Used with pure intent, this mantra can draw the interest of a woman who is especially compatible with you.
Om Nama Shivaya
“Om and salutations. May the elements of this creation abide in me in full manifestation.”

Use this mantra to salute the masculine nature (as embodied in Shiva). It is especially indicated for clarifying one’s own masculine aspect, which inevitably attracts the energy of a compatible man.

Narayani Patim Debi Shrim Klim Parameshwari
“O power of truth, please let me attract a spouse carrying the supreme feminine energy manifesting abundance and creativity.”

This mantra is traditionally used to seek a spiritually oriented female mate.

Sat Patim Debi Parameswara
“Please give to me a man of truth who embodies the perfect masculine attributes.”

This mantra is traditionally used to seek a spiritually oriented male mate.

Part 3

Mantras for Attracting Abundance and Good Luck
It is important to set a clear intent before using mantras to attract what you desire. What, exactly, do you mean by “abundance”? Do you want better health? Close companionship? A career change? I recommend writing the result you want on a piece of paper and keeping it wherever you most often recite your chosen mantra. You can still chant the mantra elsewhere, of course – but try to meditate at least once daily in the place where you keep your written intent. Focus your thoughts on your expressed intention while you practice. You will achieve optimal results by practicing your mantra between ten and twenty minutes each day for forty days.

Om Shrim Maha Lakshmiyei Swaha

“Om and salutations. I invoke the great feminine principle of great abundance.”

To attract almost any type of abundance, I recommend chanting this mantra for at least thirty minutes daily for forty days.

Om Sharavana Bhavaya Namaha

“Salutations to the son of Shiva, who brings auspiciousness and is the chief of the celestial army.”

The “son of Shiva” invoked here is Subramanya, whose legendary mental clarity led to victory in combat. This same sharp-mindedness can clear away extraneous concerns so that you can better focus on the positive aspects of your experience.
Part 4
Healing Mantras
Most healing mantras are general in nature; mantras for specific health conditions are the exception rather than the rule. Accordingly, the sacred sound formulas presented here can be applied to almost any condition.

Om Shri Dhanvantre Namaha
“Salutations to the being and power of the Celestial Physician.”
Dhanvantre was a traditional healer who was known as the Celestial Physician. His mantra is used to find the appropriate healing path for any condition.

Om Arkaya Namaha
“Om and salutations to the Shining One who removes afflictions.”
Both this mantra and the one that follows invoke the healing power of the sun. When using them, it is recommended that you spend some time in the sun each day.

Om Hiranyagharbhaya Namaha
“Om and salutations to the Shining One who heals and is golden-colored.”
"Om Ram Ramaya Swaha

“Om and salutations to that perfection in the physical realm that was Rama, whose attributes exist in me also. Kindly manifest.”

It is said that Rama took human form in order to demonstrate correct behavior in every instance. His specifically masculine energy stimulates the solar plexus chakra, where tremendous healing energy lies dormant.

Om Арадамара Хатарам Датарам Сарва Санрадам
Loka Bhi Ramam Shri Ramam Bhuyo Bhuyo Namamyaham

“Om, O most compassionate Rama. Please send your healing energy right here to the Earth, to the Earth [twice for emphasis]. Salutations.”

This mantra is among the most powerful known for healing a variety of illnesses and maladies.

Om Trayumbakam Yejamahe
Sughandhim Pushti Vardanam
Urvar-ukamiva Bandhanan
Mrityor Mukeeya Mamritat

“Shelter me, O three-eyed Lord Shiva. Bless me with health and immortality and sever me from the clutches of death, even as a cucumber is cut from its creeper.”
Shiva’s third eye – the “eye of consciousness” – is credited with the power to destroy or heal by the merest glance. This highly beneficial mantra invokes both the protection of Shiva’s healing power and his ability to prevent death.

Part 5
Mantras for Invoking Feminine Power
According to Hindu tradition, the nature of power is feminine. Although the consciousness that triggers spiritual activity is said to be masculine, it is powerless without the feminine energy that drives it. The following mantras are particularly applicable to our culture and era, where the indispensable power of the feminine is frequently trivialized or overlooked altogether.

Om Dum Durgayei Namaha
“Om and salutations to she who is beautiful to the seeker of truth and terrible in appearance to those who would injure devotees of truth.” The deity Durga is the aspect of the Hindu feminine trinity associated with protection. This mantra invokes her dual role as protector of the pious and destroyer of the arrogant, tyrannical, or demonic.

Om Eim Saraswatyei Swaha
“Om and salutations to the feminine Saraswati principle.”
Saraswati – another member of the feminine trinity – rules the power of speech. Accordingly, this mantra is used to attract success to educational, musical, artistic, and other expressive endeavors (including the practice of mantra).

Part 6
Mantras for Spiritual Growth
The anthropomorphized principles invoked by Hindu mantras are universal in nature. No matter what your chosen tradition – Christianity, Buddhism, Judaism, or any other authentic spiritual path – you can supplement your practice with the following recitations to increase your meditative focus and foster spiritual growth.

Om Namo Bhagavate Vasudevaya
“Om is the name of the Indweller in me that is ever in unity with all of creation. Kindly reveal your truth to me.”
The “Indweller” is Vasuveda: the soul, which exists as a flame in the subtle heart center. To invoke Vasudeva is to call on one’s own power of consciousness to further spiritual growth.

Om Mani Padme Hum
“The jewel of consciousness is in the heart’s lotus.”
This mantra, associated with the compassionate deity Avalotikeshwara, emphasizes that anything is possible when heart and mind are united. It also anchors the spiritual integrity that is typically expressed through service to others. A staple of Tibetan Buddhist practices, this is the best-known and most commonly recited mantra in the world.

Om Bhu, Om Bhuvaha, Om Swaha
Om Maha, Om Janaha, Om Tapaha, Om Satyam
Om Tat Savitur Varenyam
Bhargo Devasya Dhimahi
Dhiyo Yonaha Prachodayat

“O self-effulgent Light that has given birth to the luminous planes of consciousness, who is worthy of worship and appears through the spiritual lens of the sun, illumine our intellect.”

The Gayatri Mantra is considered the most potent recitation for attracting spiritual and intellectual enlightenment. It calls for the celestials to shine their light of awakened consciousness on all of the physical and spiritual realms, as represented by our chakras.

Aham Prema

“I am divine love.”

Chanting this mantra strengthens divine love, the quality that ultimately unites us all.

YOUR ONGOING MANTRA PRACTICE
A higher or ideal state of being is the ultimate goal of all spiritual discipline, including the practice of Sanskrit mantra. The ideal state can be defined in a number of ways. You may decide you want to be a “good,” “spiritual,” or “righteous” person. You may wish to attain union with some great spiritual figure – to be one with the body of Christ, to be in union with Krishna forever, or to become an enlightened being like the Buddha. You might long to participate consciously in the ongoing work of the Cosmic Mind, Transcendental Purusha, or Great Oversoul (it goes by many names).

Those select few who follow through on such intentions will ultimately determine the fate of humanity. This is why I strongly urge you to look inside yourself and identify your own spiritual ideal. Dedicate all of your spiritual practices and disciplines toward the ultimate achievement of this objective.

This does not mean that you must forego intermediate goals such as wealth, a happy marriage, a good job, or good health. It merely means that you have framed an ultimate destination that is based in your own nature as a spiritual being. From there, you proceed with the understanding that the road and the destination are really one.

May your practice of Sanskrit mantra serve you well and exceed all your expectations in fulfillment of your material needs and spiritual objectives. May you become in actuality all that you are in potential. May the love that informs every cell in your body permeate every thought in your mind. May the joy of the universe flow through you every moment. And may the Supreme Principle compassionately empower your actions and fulfill your needs. Achieving this, you will know:

_Tattwam Asi_

“You are that which you seek.”
